MARCH CRIMINAL
COURT UNDER WAY
IN UNIONTOWN*Charge to Grand Jury Delivered by Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen.*OLIVER TAYLOR FOREMAN*Three Judges Sitting as Session Opens With 119 Cases on List; Fair-Chance Man Arraigned for Murder; Defense Will Be Unwritten Law.

The March term of criminal court got under way today in Uniontown with Judges J. Q. Van Swearingen, E. M. Ruppert and J. C. Work sitting. Sessions will be held by all three until the major part of the list of 119 cases has been disposed of.

Judge Van Swearingen delivered the charge to the grand jury. It was of the usual character, dealing with the duties and powers of the members of the jury.

Oliver Taylor of South Brownsville was named foreman of the grand jury.

The first case called for trial was that of Fred Grim of Fairchance who is charged with having caused the death of Ralph Goldsboro, who died January 11 of pneumonia after he had been wounded in the abdomen by a charge from a shotgun alleged to have been fired by Grim who charged Goldsboro with breaking up his home. The unwritten law will be his defense.

Miss Ida M. DeMuth of Connellsville was the first juror chosen for the first case of the term—the Grim murder case. Miss DeMuth said she would "rather not" serve, but counsel for both sides looked upon her as a satisfactory juror.

Just a few minutes before, her brother, J. A. DeMuth, was challenged when he said he served on a murder case six or eight years ago.

Miss Sarah Sutton of Connellsville was rejected on the grounds of conscientious scruples against indicting of the death penalty.

Mrs. Catherine McGee of McGee Crossing, near Dunbar, was rejected because of conscientious scruples.

William Benson of Georges township said he had a fixed opinion and therefore was not acceptable.

Because Isaac Cropp of Connellsville was an acquaintance of H. S. Dumbauld, counsel for the defense, he was disqualified.

Mrs. May Harris of Bullock township had conscientious scruples.

Only one juror had been secured up to 2 o'clock.

The new administration under E. D. Brown, began with some 30 odd cases left over from the previous term. The large number of cases following so quickly on the election of the new district attorney, Mr. Brown, developed a vast amount of work for the new officials. They have, however, by working long hours succeeded in being fully prepared for the opening of the first term of 1924 court.

The county commissioners have provided and fitted up eight offices for the use of the district attorney, his three assistants, the county detective and the two state troopers, who are assigned by Governor Pinchot, to this county, to work under the direct supervision of District Attorney Brown. The new offices have been repainted and decorated and furnished in an inviting and comfortable manner. New file cases and office supplies have been provided for the storing of statistics and records.

State Trooper Holden has been assigned to the position formerly held by Trooper Norman Maclean and he and Trooper Webber, are now located in an office assigned by the county authorities. They as well as all others attached to the district attorney's office, can be communicated with by calling 1440 on the Bell telephone.

Persons wanting to get into immediate communication with County Detective Bell's office, call 1450 on the Bell telephone. If the county detective is wanted at night, call his residence, 1362 on the Bell.

The grand jury is composed of the following: James Bowell, Belle Venton; Mrs. Elizabeth Brackett, South Union; Miss Mildred Brooks, Bullock; Richard Bryner, South Union; Charles Bryner, Redstone; Miss Louise Cox, Redstone; E. A. Eason, Belle Vernon; Miss Pearl Mohr, Dunbar; Ollie Emory, Jr., Springhill; Miss Beatrice Fornwalt, Connellsville; William List, Lower Tyrone; Mrs. Cora Lockridge, South Brownsville; Joseph M. Luckey, Lower Tyrone; W. L. McCann, Masontown; Frank Patrick, Connellsville; Edward T. Porter, Uniontown; Altha Powell, Perryopolis; Mrs. N. Sharpnack, German Township; Joseph Sleasman, Springhill; Miss Minnie Snyder, Dunbar; John Sweeney, Dunbar; Oliver Taylor, Brownsville.

Bandits Get $6,000
From Collector

CHICAGO, March 3.—Three automobile bandits robbed E. L. Hiller, a collector for the Agat Motor Fuel Company, of $6,000 while he was making his rounds of the company's stations here today.

FIVE PATIENTS
ENTER HOSPITAL
OVER WEEK-END

Five new patients were admitted to the Connellsville State Hospital over the week-end, two for operations and three being accident cases.

Louis Wislowski was found in the street near the Sligo mills yesterday afternoon. It is believed he had been struck by an automobile. He is not seriously injured.

Casappa Guleppa of Juniata was struck by a Fayotte Baking Company truck at that place on Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock. He was brought here in the machine but went home yesterday, his injuries being only of a slight nature.

Patrick McAtee of Casparis was run over by a horse and wagon at that place on Saturday. He was discharged this morning.

Miss Ruth McLaughlin of Mount Braddock underwent an operation for appendicitis at the hospital this morning. Mrs. Lydia Keffer of McKeesport will be operated on tomorrow.

Supply Pastors
To Fill Slavish
Lutheran Pulpit

For the present, supply pastors will fill the pulpits of St. Peter's Slavish Lutheran Church, of which Rev. Martin Tomasko, who died suddenly, was pastor for 25 years. Yesterday R. Vargor, a student at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, conducted services. Next Sunday there will be a minister from Duquesne.

There was a feeling that owing to the comparatively small size of the church membership it might be wise to sell the church and have the congregation unite with the larger one in Uniontown. This matter was not taken up Sunday.

Children Burn
To Death; Father
Believed Dying

NEW LEXINGTON, Ohio, March 3.—Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tracey of McHenry, near here, were burned to death and Tracey is dying as the result of a fire which destroyed their home today.

The dead are, Nellie, three, and Julia Tracey, five. Tracey's wife escaped with an eight-month-old baby.

Tracey attempted to start a fire with coal oil and used a can of gasoline instead. He jumped into a creek to extinguish the flames on his clothing.

C. M. F. & S. C. Co.
Shops Resume Activity

Operations were resumed at the shops of the Connellsville Machine, Foundry & Steel Casting Company this morning after a suspension of a few days. With orders on hand and additional business in prospect it will be necessary to increase the working force to 75 workmen. These are now being taken on by General Manager George Baker.

With the appointment of Attorneys S. Ray Shelby and E. C. Higbee as receivers the situation with respect to this plant created by the involved condition of the estate of the late Senator W. E. Crow, a large stockholder, has been met and the company is now in a position to go ahead energetically in its several lines which include the manufacture of iron, steel, brass, bronze and aluminum castings and mine and mill machinery of all kinds and other work.

MacDonald Speaks
Out to Poincare

LONDON, March 3.—As man to man, Premier Ramsay MacDonald, has written frankly to Premier Poincare about British suspicions of France and the latter's country vultures and of French intentions to gain what she failed to get during the peace negotiations.

Poincare in a personal letter equally outspoken, defended France's policy.

Lenten Services at Lutheran Church

Lenten services will be opened at Trinity Lutheran Church Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at which time Dr. William H. Hatrick, the pastor, will conduct the full service in the auditorium.

Similar services will be held each Wednesday evening until Easter, in addition to the services on Sundays.

Given 99 Days.

A negro who gave her name as Martha Thompson was given the maximum sentence in police court by Mayor C. C. Mitchell this morning. She was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. In default of a fine of $100 she will go to jail for 90 days.

Rev. F. T. Conway Stricken.

Rev. F. T. Conway is seriously ill at his home at Fairchance as the result of a stroke of paralysis which he suffered about a week ago.

UNDERWORLD
STARTS WAR
ON BUTLER*This Is Analysis of Increase in Crime in City of Brotherly Love.*WILL ARM 1,000 FIREMEN

Public Safety Director Continued Police Force as Now Constituted Is Not Delivering Goods; Plans to "Read Riot Act" to Them Today.

By United Press.

PHILADELPHIA, March 3.—One thousand firemen will be armed and used as policemen if crimes and banditry in this city do not decrease by tomorrow night, Director of Public Safety Butler announced today.

Butler intends to "read the riot act" to his lieutenants today. He declares he is not getting the results necessary if the city is to be cleaned up.

The sudden outbreak of crime here is seen in some circles as a start of a war of retaliation upon the director and law forces by the underworld.

Lutherans Over
Subscribe Fund
For Orphanage

Against a quota of $648 for the Zellenople Orphan Home and the home mission fund of the Pittsburgh Strand of the Lutheran Church, members of Trinity Church, Connellsville, Sunday pledged over $2,000, with many yet to be heard from. Dr. William H. Hatrick, the pastor, estimated today that the fund will be increased by several hundred dollars.

The quota for the synd was $120,000.

Indictments Sought In Prison Riot Case

PITTSBURGH, March 3.—The grand jury tomorrow will be asked to return murder indictments against five convicts who are held responsible for the deaths of two guards in the recent riot at the Western Penitentiary. District Attorney Gardner announced today.

The prisoners, whose names will be placed before the grand jury are Salvatore "Butte Ace" Dattaglia, Paul Diakowski, John Kerns, James Yandis and Michael Norton.

Orders to permit the taking of these convicts from the penitentiary to testify before the grand jury were obtained this afternoon.

Daugherty Trial Committee Meets

WASHINGTON, March 3.—With Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Progressive leader, in the background directing its strategy, the Senate committee named to investigate Attorney General Daugherty's administration of the Department of Justice met today to plan its inquiry.

Regarding the investigation as a trial, Daugherty, through counsel, has demanded that it be conducted exactly like a court trial and that he be permitted to subpoena defense witnesses.

W. W. Ball Has Rib

Soldier Bonus Legislation to Start This Week

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Soldier bonus legislation starts on the first lap of its journey through Congress this week.

Hearings of the various bonus measures will open before the House Ways and Means Committee tomorrow.

Chairman Green expects to have a bonus bill whipped into shape for report to the House by Saturday.

Sentiment in the House for a paid-up insurance bonus bill is gaining ground. Representatives Fish, New York; Andrews, Massachusetts, have advanced such plans and a third by Representative Bachrach, New Jersey, will be introduced today.

Bachrach's plan provides for an endowment policy for every enlisted man who saw 100 days service, payable at the age of 62. Congress would be excluded. The estimate the plan would cost from $30,000,000 to $35,000,000 the first year, increasing each year.

The American Legion and other veterans' organizations have endorsed the McKenzie bill, which is identical with the measure passed by the last Congress and vetoed by President Harding.

Suit to Cancel
Oil Leases to Be Filed During Day

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Suit to cancel the Sinclair and Dukeney oil leases will be filed late today or tomorrow by Presidential counsel, Attorney General Cummings, one of the counsel, announced today.

In addition to suing for cancellation of the leases the counsel will ask the court to restrain Dukeney and Sinclair from withdrawing any more oil from the leased reserves, pending final decision of the suit.

RAIN MAIN BREAKS

West Side Consumers Without Supply Until This Morning.

Gas consumers on the West Side were without a supply until about 9 o'clock this morning when a four-inch main broke near the lower end of Second street, due to a mine cave-in.

Firemen were summoned last evening to extinguish a blaze in a rubber-plant which started after the gas had ignited. An extra crew of men was brought from Uniontown to assist in making repairs.

To Open Road Bids.

HARRISBURG, March 3.—Bids on the construction of 25.55 feet of highway between Export and Marysville, located in Westmoreland and Allegheny counties, will be opened March 18 by the State Highway Department. This stretch of road, known as route 187, is a portion of the William Penn Highway.

HARRY HART SHOT GRAPPLING WITH
UNRULY LINEMEN*Republic Officer Suffered Only Wound in Hand and Wrist.*HOLDS FAST TO THE MEN

They Are Taken to Jail to Await Hearing on Charge of Felonious Shooting; Officer Wounded Five Years Before to the Very Day.

Called from his home at Republic Saturday night at 10 o'clock to subdue two Pittsburgh men employed as linemen by the West Penn who were creating a disturbance on the street, Constable Harry Hart, one of the best known officers in the south end of the county, was shot in the hand when he attempted to wrest a revolver from W. H. McCullen.

Wounded as he was, the officer grabbed one of the men with his left hand and clutched fast to the other with the wounded one until aid came and the men were placed under arrest. McCullen's companion was John Hawkins.

With the aid of citizens the linemen were taken to jail in Uniontown where they must answer a charge of felonious shooting. Hart went to the Uniontown Hospital for treatment of his wound. The bullet entered the palm and ploughed into the wrist.

Hart was shot in the knee five years ago to the day while chasing criminals at Fairchance.

Liquor in Home
Without Permit
Held Illegal

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The Supreme Court today held that the section of the Idaho prohibition laws prohibiting a person possessing liquor in his home without a permit is valid.

The case came to the Supreme Court on the appeal of Raymond Moore for a conviction for the possession of liquor for his own use in his own home, contrary to provisions of the Idaho law.

Counsel for Moore contended that the Idaho law was invalid and unconstitutional in that it prohibited an act expressly declared lawful by the Volstead Act.

Diamond Brothers

McLEAN FACES
GRILLING BY
OIL PROBERS*Publisher Will Be Placed on Stand Wednesday or Thursday.*WHOLE STORY WANTED

Committee Not Satisfied His Account Was Limited to Loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall; William J. Burns to Be Questioned Also.

By United Press.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—"Get the whole story of McLean's connection with the oil scandal," was the objective of the Senate oil committee today.

The committee is convinced McLean's connection with the oil scandal is not yet been completed, that he has supposed loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall. Evidence already gathered showing how McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and close friend of government officials, used a small army of lawyers and special agents to prevent the story of his part becoming known, has clinched the belief of committee members that the whole story has not been told.

McLean faces severe questioning when he is put on the witness stand Wednesday or Thursday. Hearings will be resumed tomorrow. William J. Burns and Mrs. Mary Duckstein, special agent of the Department of Justice, are to be called to tell where McLean got a secret copy of the department which was used to keep him informed daily of events here in connection with the oil investigation.

Francis H. Madden, son of William J. Madden, also is to be asked what he did as agent of McLean.

Planning rapid cleanup of its inquiry, the committee intends to go into the alleged stock speculation and such fund.

Walsh will also question Mrs. Duckstein, reputed author of the "Mary" program which was developed to show that Burns had sent word indirectly to McLean that he was being investigated by the Department of Justice.

Mrs. Duckstein, now an agent of the department, is a former Bureau confidential secretary. Her husband, W. O. Duckstein, was one of McLean's secretaries.

Burns will be asked to tell whether McLean is reported on the list as a "dollar a year" man with a secret service operative shield and a copy of the department's secret code.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Senator Walsh, Montana, today vetoed through a War Department code expert the translation previously given the Senate oil committee of the McLean code telegrams and immediately ordered the appearance before the committee tomorrow morning of William J. Burns, head of the secret service.

Walsh said the department's expert had deepened the messages "mildly startling" as they appeared in a previous translation and that he had established the fact the messages were in a language of justice code.

The expert will go on the stand as the first witness to tell those things and Burns will then be called on to explain how McLean got the department's secret code.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—A three-way investigation of a "tax scandal" that may be proved to link up with some of the principal figures in the oil scandal was under way here today.

Refunds of more than $226,000,000 in taxes since 1917, of which more than $123,000,000 was refunded in 1923 alone, form the basis of the investigation.

MRS. RANAGE HONORED
AT TURKEY DINNER
 Mrs. Anna Springer was hostess at a dinner of beautiful appointments yesterday at her home in Crawford avenue, West Side, in honor of the eightieth anniversary of the birth of her mother, Mrs. Hannah Ranage who resides at the Springer home. The menu consisted of the many good things which help to make a real turkey dinner. Covers for twenty were laid and in the center of the table was a large birthday cake with eight candles, denoting the age of the honored guest. Mrs. Ranage enjoys good health and none present enjoyed the day more than she. Out of town guests were Mrs. James Mullin of Greensburg, James Ranage of Star Junction and Robert Springer of Monaca.

Junior Holy Name Reception.
 Approximately seventy-five boys, ranging in age from 12 to 16 years, of the Immaculate Conception Church were received into the Holy Name Society last night. The ceremony was beautiful and was witnessed by a large congregation. Promptly at 7:30 the boys entered the church for the reception, being played by Miss Josephine Cane, the church organist. Following the recitation of the Rosary, Litany of the Holy Name and Prayer by St. Joseph the pastor, Rev. Father Henry Gebel gave an appealing and instructive sermon. He clearly pointed out the obligation of the society and its advantages. The reception was held at the close of the sermon. A recitation of the Act of Consecration by William Solomon, Jr., followed. The exercises closed with the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Gebel followed by the "Te Deum" under the direction of Fred Nounth. The oath taken by the members of the Junior Holy Name Society is as follows:

"I profess publicly my belief that Our Lord Jesus Christ is the Son of God, made man for the salvation of mankind. I recognize His Divine authority, and believe that all power on earth, civil and religious, comes from Him. I faithfully consecrate myself to His service and promise to obey His laws and to uphold the hands of those vested with His power. May the God of Might break asunder the bonds of those who oppose His will, and may He grant that I may be able to resist temptation, blasphemy, profanity and obscene speech."

Mrs. Marjorie Hostess.
 Mrs. G. J. Marjorie was hostess at a delightfully appointed children's party Saturday afternoon at her home in East Green street in honor of the third anniversary of the birth of her little son George. Various games and music were the amusement, followed by a delightful luncheon served by the hostess. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in a most effective manner. The favors were attractive paper hats. Master George was the recipient of a number of pretty gifts.

Star Hunt is Fun Encouraged.
 Announcement of the engagement of Miss Virginia Schneider of Uniontown and Randolph Edward of Star Junction was made at a card party given Saturday afternoon by Miss Frances Slesky at her home in Uniontown. The announcement was in keeping with Saint Patrick's Day and was charming in every detail. The announcement was enclosed in a lovely little cardboard box which was given as favors. The date of the wedding was not announced but it will probably be an autumn event. Progressive five hundred was played and at the conclusion of the games dainty refreshments were served. Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Tom Behrman and Mrs. Frank Sawyer, sister-in-law and sister of the bridegroom-elect, Mrs. Boyd Knox and Mrs. Ruth Llewellyn, all of Star Junction; Miss Anna Lowther, Mrs. Martha Bunker, Mrs. Mae Hixson, Mrs. Marie Snyder, Mrs. Marvante Kerns and Miss Jeannette Pollock all of Perryopolis.

32nd Anniversary Meeting.
 The thirty-second anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Methodist Episcopal Church will be observed with a tea Thursday afternoon, the hours being from 2 to 5 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. W. P. Clark in Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Clark's aides are Mrs. Harry T. Crossland, Mrs. J. B. Henderson and Mrs. George Overey. Members are asked to bring their gifts for Miss Carrie Konyon, a missionary in Malaya, to this meeting.

Catherine Johnston Society.
 The regular meeting of the Catherine Johnston Home Missionary Society of the First Methodist Protestant Church will be held Tuesday evening in the home of Miss Josephine Rinehart and Miss Mercedes Gladden in South Eighth street, Greenwood. The committee is composed of Miss Rinehart, Miss Gladden and Mrs. Robert Boyd.

Missionary Meeting.
 The Woman's Missionary Society of the First Presbyterian Church will meet Wednesday afternoon in the church. Mrs. J. M. Cecil will conduct the devotional exercises and Mrs. John Everett will have charge of the literary program. The study book will be in charge of Mrs. W. L. Beuscher.

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must Be Done and Done Quick, Too.

Tens of thousands of thin, undernourished, and women are getting discouraged, are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong. All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McClellan's Cod Liver Oil Tablets which any druggist will tell you all about, is pulling flesh on bones of skinnies every day. One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine. We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh-producing vitamins, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach. McClellan's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 10 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 60 cents a box. Ask Conneltsville Drugg Co. and A. A. Clarke or any live pharmacist anywhere—Advertisement.

Steel Buildings Are Electrostatic Shields

New York skyscrapers are the safest places in all the world during thunderstorms, says a man who knows a good deal about lightning. Tall buildings are electrostatic shields, he explains, because the steel used in their construction absorbs the electricity. Comforting word that to city dwellers, but even so, a problem of transportation must be solved. When the thunder lets go its opening salvo, and the lightning begins to rip, how should the storm-ridden reach the refuge of a big building with the promise of safety in its steel bones?

What a racing and chasing there would be to towering temples of business should the good man's pronouncement have wide acceptance. Folks' feet might lose ground in the middle distances, but on form they should hold the advantage at the finish, as the off-chance of finding a place to park raises the odds against the motorists. It's all well enough to point out safety in skyscrapers, but the attainment of that security seems rather difficult and doubtful. Whatever because of that fellow Ajax? He is reported to have had a speaking acquaintance with lightning. True, he was rather reckless with his talk, and probably had a right to dip his hands faith in his immunity to shock. An arresting figure, Ajax—perhaps the very first of the irreconcilables to stand up for splendid insulation.—The Nation's Business.

West Side Tailors
Displaying Priestley
Imported Material

What is believed to be the first display in this city of Priestley's English imported material was announced yesterday by D. Simons & Son, tailors of the West Side. The selection consists of patterns including Bauernschneidwerk. The West Side tailors were prompted to secure the agency for this material because of the unusually heavy demand for the Priestley cloths in the New England States.

The material is exceptionally suitable for young men's suits. The fashion portfolio accompanying the line of patterns portrays attractively the designs most in demand. For the convenience of buyers, however, several patterns have been made up for display and to assist in the selection of styles. All the garments are handsomely finished in grey silk serge. One of the garments on display is a three-button box back design. The material is light grey in plain design. Others are cut in the collarless and form sport-model. On completion each topcoat bears a Priestley label, assuring the buyer of the garment of the genuineness of the material. A guarantee "Prismometer" label is also attached in order to satisfy the wearer that the topcoat may be used on "clear days and also on "rainy days"—Advertisement.—Advertisement.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS
Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. To have clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days—you must get the cause. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—but have no dangerous after effects. They start the bile and overcome constipation. Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes are sold annually at 15c and 30c.

No Finer Ham in the World

WHITE LILY Hams are standard; not made to fit a price. Due to the fact that they are taken only from choice, clean-killed little porkers—hard to secure at times—and are subjected to longer and more careful curing than others, they sometimes cost a cent or two per pound more, BUT THEY'RE ALWAYS GOOD—ALWAYS DELICIOUS. And you never get a poor one. Try a piece of White Lily—you will find it requires no parboiling, an exclusive feature. Baked or boiled, they are ideal for sandwiches or the delicious cold cuts so popular. Taste Sam's passage on their excellence before you get them and each bears the U. S. Government Inspection mark.

Red and Green Sandals to Give Way to Brown

Alligator, tan buck, Alcedo, platinum—no, it's not an announcement from the zoo, it's the opening line of a piece of verse, but just to let the women in on a secret—these are the newest shades in spring footwear according to the shoe salesman, who are forecasting foot fashions for the coming season, says a writer in the Detroit News.

While the names of these colors fall startlingly upon the ear they are much easier on the eye. According to the shoe dealers, the brilliant colors of the past season, the flaming red slippers, the blue hooties and the green gaiters are out, and this spring the feet of the women who are in a mode will be clad in coverings of more sober hues.

The feet that will be put foremost will be hidden in shoes of suede, they declare, in varying tones of color. Alcedo (the newest shade for women's shoes), a mixture of gray and tan, will lead the list; tanback will run a close second, and platinum, a delicate mingling of various grays, will also be featured.

As for the architecture of the shoes, they will follow the present popular pattern, that of allowing as much air as possible to reach the foot by the means of delicately patterned holes cut in the leather, built somewhat on the plan of a doughnut. Sandals will be in great demand and especially a new model called the Hollywood sandal. These sandals will be of the strap variety the shoe prophets say, and will only be more popular than a more solid sister in footwear, the puttan pump, designed on the colonial lines.

Yesterday was Patrons' Day at the local school. It having been postponed from last Friday, owing to weather conditions.

Mrs. Emma Kessler and Mrs. Harry Cretin of Dickerson Run were Conneltsville callers Wednesday.

DIFFICULT DIAGNOSIS

"The young mother was frantic. Her two-year-old daughter howled and howled and howled."
"Whatever is the matter with the child?" asked the father in despair.
His wife sank limply into a chair and began to weep, while the baby went on howling.

"I didn't know," sobbed the distressed mother. "It's either because she's eaten too many strawberries or she wants more!"—Hyslop.

MADE HER WELL, STRONG, HAPPY

Richmond Woman Is Thankful for Relief From Indigestion

"Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic is a blessing to any family," writes Miss C. H. Smith, of Richmond, Virginia. "It has made me well, strong and happy."

"I was a constant sufferer with indigestion, insomnia and excessive nervousness. No remedies that I tried seemed to benefit me. Finally, having heard such excellent reports of Paw Paw Tonic, I purchased a bottle and the effect was instantaneous. It is a wonderful tonic. It digests everything it touches and does its work speedily and surely."

What Munyon's Paw Paw Tonic did for Miss Smith it has done for thousands of other men and women. And it may do the same for you. Buy a $1 bottle at any first-class drug store. "There's a Munyon's Pill for Every Ill." Munyon's, Scranton, Pa.

SAVAGE MALAYS DEFY WHITE MEN

Sumatra May Soon Experience Oil Boom.

Washington, D. C.—"Down where the monkeys chatter, where the plants outgrow the trees, where old men climb the branches and drop like ripe fruit to be eaten, and natives keep their teeth silent close to the gums," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society, "is Sumatra, where the ubiquitous oil drill is reaping a remote harvest."

"Reports that the Jambul petroleum fields are to be developed give promise that the world's fifth largest island may soon experience a boom like that which has made its little sister, Java, a garden spot of the world."

Malaya Defy White Man's Rule.
"The length of Sumatra is equal to the distance from New York to St. Louis; its area is greater than that of all the New England states. New York and Pennsylvania; it is four times the size of Java, yet has only one-sixth as many people."

"The Dutch found the Javanese a docile and industrious people but the mixed, warring and savage Malays of Sumatra, to this day have defied the white man's rule. The Acheinese natives, in the north island country, first rebelled against the newcomers in 1506, have fought steadily for the past 40 years, and are reported to have cost the Dutch 200,000 lives and $200,000,000."

Volunteers for Cannibalism.
"The Batak, however, are the least civilized of the island natives. The Dutch have tried to stamp out cannibalism, but there is no certainty that they have been successful in their humane endeavor. When an aged warrior felt he no longer was a first-class fighting man he would climb a tree, beneath it his relatives would climb and dance. After a time he would fall to the ground, symbolizing the dropping of ripe fruit, whereupon the 'murderers' would promptly kill him by a blow on the head and eat him."

"Given the Sumatran natives who work on the great tobacco and rubber plantations, and live along the beaten paths to their native customs. Women wear wedding earrings, not wedding rings. These are large, silver, button-like trinkets which must be kept in evidence until the first child is born, or for four years if there is no child, and then abandoned. The sucking, bittleness of the older women do not commend the custom."

Mother Her Own Perambulator.
"A Sumatran mother is her own perambulator. She carries her baby astride her hips, held there by a scarf tied across her shoulder. Her single-piece gown, and only garment, is a sarong which hangs loosely from under the arms, or from the waist. A turban-like headpiece, of the same dark blue cloth as her sarong, completes her costume."

"Sumatra is a botanical garden of amazing luxuriance. Some varieties of bamboo, which look like giant asparagus stalks, grow a foot or more a day and in three or four months their spiny tops appear above the centuries-old tenacious forest monarchs. A flower which attains the prodigious size of its name is the 'Undunnamahurt.' All along the east coast, which stealthily reaches out to take the fringe of islands to its bosom, is the mangrove. When the full moon's rays are ripe they do not fall off. They germinate on the parent tree and grow downward in long shoots. These drop of their own weight, take root in shallow water, and help catch the silt worked down to Sumatra's swampy coast by rainfalls almost as heavy as those of Rhodesia."

"Waterpots, simoons and almost daily thunderstorms add to the weather variety of the east coast. The equatorial mountains range extends nearly the length of this island along the west coast, on which side are few rivers and more temperate weather than one would expect in a land mass practically bisected by the Equator. A principal river of the east coast is the Jambul which gives its name to the region and town where the oil drills break the skyline of forest jungles."

New Disease Takes Heavy Toll Among Cottonbolls

New York.—A new disease that is taking a heavy toll among cottonbolls has been found by protectors. The rabbits were found apparently asleep in a natural position under a bush, but on trying to poke them out they were found to be dead.

On dissecting a number of these rabbits Game Protector Hirsch found that, in their intestines, in nearly every case this worm had bored through the walls of the intestines, causing death. The situation was most acute in Catawug county, and a number of complaints came in from different sportsmen who found these conditions. In the opinion of Inspector Brackett there is no doubt that this disease caused a marked decrease in the numbers of rabbits taken there this fall.

Chance of Auto Death Grows in Pennsylvania

Harrisburg, Pa.—The chance of a person in Pennsylvania being killed by a motor vehicle had increased from one in 369,000 to one in 6,450 in 1923, according to figures compiled by officials of the department of highway.

The figures showed that in 1906 there were less than 11,000 motor vehicles in the state and 19 persons were killed by them. In 1923 the number of vehicles had increased to 1,054,026, and if the rate of deaths from motor vehicle accidents had been the same in 1923 as in 1906, 1,820 persons would have been killed last year instead of the 1,450 estimated by the department.

Department officials declare the "reduction in the rate of deaths per automobile is due to improvement in design and mechanism of vehicles, due to increased caution on the part of drivers and to conformance with laws and regulations adopted for safeguarding traffic and pedestrians."

The Faith of Woman

Scattergood McEl Harris, the youngest Pittsburgh divorce lawyer, was penning the faith and trust of woman. "A young woman," he said, "said to me the other day with a laugh: 'Isn't it simply incredible how careless the post-office people are?' 'Careless?' said I. 'How so?' 'Why,' she said, 'take, for example, the case of Pete. Pete was her rich and prodigal young husband. Here's Pete, she went on, 'being kept in that nasty, dirty city of Alton, hard at work in the rolling mills for the past month, and every blessed letter I get from him is postmarked Patu Hound!'"

While the Band Played On

Mr. Blank—"That was howlin' time the baby had last night." Doctor Soother—"Yes, but did the baby get a good night's rest after I sent that sleeping powder over?"

Mr. Blank—"We don't know. My wife and I took the powder between us and we went straight off to sleep."

A Thug of Experience

"Stick 'em up, kid," ordered the thug. "Where you think you're going?" "Home," murmured the student. "Where from?" "Date." "Who with?" "Coad." "Here, take this five-dollar bill."—Ohio Sun Dial.

Watch your pimples vanish

Why? Pimple-Poison goes when Red Blood-Cells increase! S. S. S. builds these Red-Blood-Cells!

You can be sure of this, nature has no substitute for red-blood-cells. Pimple-poison can't live in the red rivers of your blood as long as there are

Every woman, every man, can now have enough rich red-blood-cells to kill more red-blood-cells! That is, that you need when you see pimples starting at you in the mirror. Black-headed pimples are worse! Eczema is worse yet! You can try everything under the sun—you'll find only one answer, more cell-power in your blood! The tremendous results produced by an increase in red-blood-cells is one of the A. B. C.'s of medical science. Red-cells mean clear, pure, rich blood. They mean clear, ruddy, lovable complexion. They mean nerve power, because all your nerves are fed by your blood. They mean freedom forever from pimples, from the blackhead pest, from boils, from eczema, and skin eruptions, from rheumatic impurities, from that tired, exhausted, run-down feeling. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in the world to each of us. S. S. S. will build them for you. S. S. S. has been known since 1828, as one of the greatest blood-builders, blood-cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

Master of the Storm--

Telephone and telegraph wires were down; power plants had been rendered helpless; street car traffic was at a standstill; train service was badly hampered; the highways were unsafe to venture one—and the City was in darkness, save for the dim flicker of candle light, while the fury of one of the worst "mountain storms" in the history of Fayette County had practically cut us off from communication with the outside world.

But RADIO proved itself master of the storm. Press reports were broadcasted to the newspapers; train messages were dispatched; world news flashed in; and folks, shut in by the raging elements, sat around their Radio—unmindful of the storm—enjoying programs of music, vaudeville, opera and jazz broadcasted from a hundred cities—some of them thousands of miles away!

If you were privileged to "listen in" that night while the storm did its worst without, you will appreciate the value of Radio for the home.

Slayer in Prison for Life Is Wealthy

New York.—Alphonse J. Stephens, a life convict, Sing Sing, has an estate of $150,000, according to an accounting filed in the county clerk's office by the Equitable Trust company, committee of person. The accounting shows that Stephens paid an income tax of $45.48 to the government and $25.90 to the state. Although numerous expenditures are listed in the accounting, including $1,800 to Charles L. Hoffman, as referee, and the same amount to Theodore Gibbons, as guardian, there is nothing to show that Stephens spent any money for his own comfort. He was sentenced to Sing Sing in 1903 for the murder of ex-Judge G. F. Reynolds, an attorney.

Justice Waits Until Girl Gets Her Wave

New York.—Detective Barney Flood, one time gallant of the boulevards of Paris and now of the district attorney's staff, upheld his reputation recently. Flood was sent to arrest Alexander Szabo, twenty-eight, a hair-dresser, who lives at 337 East Sixty-ninth street. Szabo was indicted for making a false claim for fire insurance to the Hartford Fire Insurance company after a fire in an establishment he formerly owned at 108 West Fifty-seventh street.

Szabo was not at home and—after visiting many beauty parlors—Flood finally located him at 17 West Forty-eighth street, where Szabo was putting a permanent wave in a girl's hair.

Szabo left the complicated electrical apparatus on the girl's head unattended a moment while he read the warrant, and Flood said:

"You've got to come along. You're under arrest."

"Well, of all things," the girl said, "He can't leave me now; he just can't!"

"Young lady," said Flood, "don't worry, don't worry at all. I'll wait and the ends of justice can be served later."

Flood waited. Later Judge Mulqueen held Szabo in $5,000 bail following a plea of not guilty.

Beggar for Many Years, Now Refuses to Quit

New York.—His shabby figure cowering before the bench in the Seventh district night court, while Magistrate Goodman labeled him a "parasite on society" who has fawned and preyed on others since the day he first reached the country's shores, Sam Shapiro, forty-three, a beggar, who has made his profession more lucrative than some others of a more dignified nature, presented a problem as old as society itself.

"I'm not going to send you to the island if I can help it," said the magistrate, "to have the city support you a few days more. I'm going to fine you $50."

Shapiro said he did not have the money, and refused to send for any; he won his point and the privilege of staying ten days in jail—at public expense.

Seventeen years ago he stepped from the steerage compartment of a ship from Russia, hungry and penniless. Five minutes later, near the wharves, he begged his first nickel on American soil. He didn't stop to get something to eat with the first coin, though he was hungry, but kept on his way toward city hall and the center of tinajas, supplementing penury at every step.

Rare in Her Generation.
Hokus—She's such an old-fashioned girl.
Fokus—What do you mean, old-fashioned?
Hokus—She's positively effeminate.

Over Half of Quota for Palestine Fund Raised

JUDGE BERNARD A. ROSENBLATT.

With the county's quota set at $10,000, more than half of this amount was raised at the banquet which opened the all county drive of the Keren Hayesod. (Palestine Foundation Fund) served to 250 men of Fayette County, at the Gallatin Gardens, Uniontown. Of the total of $5,500 raised, $2,200 was subscribed by men from Brownsville alone, while other sections of the county, represented at the banquet, also subscribed substantial amounts.

The principal speaker of the evening was Judge Bernard A. Rosenblatt, of New York City.

TO TRY TO BEAT U. S. AIR RECORD

England, France and Portugal Prepare for 'Round- the-World' Flight.

Washington, D. C., (AP)—Telling pilots all the world records that are worth while, including those for speed, altitude, endurance and distance, the United States will now undertake to be the first to circumnavigate the globe by air. England tried last summer but failed, the attempt ending disastrously because the crew, which was in a cockpit, but the flight is planned to try again and France and Portugal are also preparing to make the attempt during the coming summer.

Accordingly the plans of the army air service are now going forward in order that an early start may be made possibly in March and not later than May 1. In order that the country that is the home of the heavier-than-air craft may be first to accomplish the epochal feat.

Not only must an early start be made, but the most careful and most elaborate preparations must be made to guard against every possible contingency that might defeat the undertaking. The route must be mapped out with exactness, supply depots established and stockpiled with every possible necessity, landing places selected and marked, and a thousand and one details looked after, any one of which might prove to be the one thing upon which success or failure hinges.

Have No Thought of Failure.
The men who are courageous enough and willing to risk their lives in the effort to achieve this further distinction for their country will be backed up in every way and if failure should result it will be due to causes unforeseen and that could not have been guarded against.

In a matter of fact, the men who are making the plans and making the necessary arrangements have no thought of failure and are sure that the heavier-than-air flight will be many times a more difficult feat. Secretary of War Weeks was convinced that there is an excellent chance of success and approved the project early last month.

Equipment to Be Used.
Four big six-engine American-designed and American-built, and equipped with Liberty engines will be used in the undertaking. The start will be made from Washington and the finish, if the flight is successful, will be at the national capital.

The tentative route that has been mapped out encompasses flying from Washington to Seattle, thence northward along the coast of Canada and a short Alaska across the Aleutian islands down through the peninsula of Japan to Honolulu, along the shore of China, French Indo-China, Siam and India across India up the Persian Gulf across Turkey and Europe to England thence north through the later islands to Iceland, thence to Greenland and Iceland and along the northern shore of the continent to Cape Cod, Greenland, from where a direct flight will be made to Newfoundland and along the Canadian coast and inland to Montreal, and thence north to Washington.

Proposed Itinerary.
It is planned to start the flight on or about the first of May, in the United States and India, and to pass over the United Kingdom and Greenland during the months of August and September.

The proposed itinerary has been divided into six divisions, as follows: First, beginning at Washington, D. C., and ending at Alaska Island in the Aleutian Islands, ending at Nagasaki, Japan; second, ending at Calcutta, India; third, ending at Constantinople, Turkey; fourth, ending at Hanoi, Indochina; fifth, ending at London, England; sixth, ending at Washington, D. C.

One advance officer will cover each section of this route, and as expert in describing the underlying, including detailed information on landings and supplies, facilities, transportation, strength, meteorological and climatic conditions, etc., and will make the arrangements for the passage of the aircraft through the territory in which he is assigned. Supplies will have to be shipped from the United States to various points on the route several months in advance of the flight, and for this purpose each division has a main depot with one or more sub-depots where major items of supply will be stored. Gasoline and oil and smaller articles of supply will be placed at practically all stops.

Will Carry Passengers.
At Seattle the landing gear will be taken off and the planes will be equipped with pontoons in order to make water landings on sheltered harbors along the coast of Canada and Alaska and through the Aleutian Islands down to Japan. Landing gear will be used again either from Nagasaki or from Calcutta depending upon the conditions encountered at the time of the flight. They will necessarily be used across Asia Minor and Europe, as far as Iceland where pontoons will be substituted again and used until Montreal is reached at Keyport N. J. where the planes will be equipped again to make field landings.

Advantage will be taken of the course of existing steady facilities in this country and between India and England and it is thought that southward to the United States. The possibility of the route must be given the most careful survey, and in permitting execution in the most efficient manner. It is thought that the best route will be from Washington to Seattle, thence northward along the coast of Canada and Alaska and through the Aleutian Islands down to Japan. Landing gear will be used again either from Nagasaki or from Calcutta depending upon the conditions encountered at the time of the flight. They will necessarily be used across Asia Minor and Europe, as far as Iceland where pontoons will be substituted again and used until Montreal is reached at Keyport N. J. where the planes will be equipped again to make field landings.

Longest Men of Flight.
Major J. H. Nelson, who was the commanding officer on the Albatross, is the longest man of flight.

Flight has been charged with the responsibility of supervising the construction of the planes that are to be used in the round the world flight. Nelson, with his experience in command of the Albatross, was with the flight of six army planes from San Antonio, Tex., through the West Indies to Porto Rico and thence to Washington.

The longest hop in the flight around the world as projected will be from Albatross Island in the Aleutians to Pinn Island in the northern part of the Aleutian Islands group in Japan.

The other long non-stop flights will be that over the Atlantic between the Azores Islands and Iceland, that between Ireland and Greenland, and the one between Greenland and a port in the northern part of Canada.

Dog Chews His Owner's
Tobacco With Pleasure

New York—Many remarkable things have been heard from time to time as to what dogs will do, but one of the strangest stories is about a tobacco-chewing dog, and evidently from the manner in which it is told our canine friend enjoys it exceedingly.

The home of this dog is in West Virginia, in the town of Clarkburg. His name is Laddie and his owner is James Mack. Mack finds great pleasure in the use of tobacco, and naturally, being of a kind-hearted nature, he concluded that his four-legged pet might derive the same benefit from it as he does.

Accordingly Laddie received a few crows share and at once showed his ability to master the chew. Since then he has formed the habit, and is very proud of it. He will chew any brand that is given to him but is very particular as to the quality of the tobacco.

His tobacco-chewing habit has now reached such a point that his owner has to limit him to three chews a day. In Laddie is a combination of Scotch courage and rat terror.

"Disaster Bird" Again
Back in Baltic States

Danish—Old inhabitants of the Baltic States are shaking their heads doubtfully over the appearance of the so-called "disaster bird," known among the superstitious as the "bird of disaster." It has not been seen in these regions since the winter of 1933-34.

Residents of East Prussia and other parts of the Baltic contend that it is a matter of historical record that the birds were hereabouts in the winter of 1912, preceding Napoleon's Russian campaign, and that their appearance on this side of the Baltic at intervals of years has invariably been followed by famine, pestilence or war before the year was out. Early in 1934 the bird, called through, he said to have come as far south as France. This winter, according to reports here, the birds have scattered over central Europe, touched Russia on the east, and gone as far west as Belgium and the Netherlands.

The snowfall in the vicinity of Denmark this winter has been the heaviest in 85 years. Sometimes say the weather has been particularly severe in the far north, and that the birds probably came south on that account.

Leap Year Brings Slump
in Washington Weddings

South End, Wash.—The marriage license bureau of the city's southern office is in the throes of a "leap-year slump."

During one week recently not one self-reverent couple approached the marriage license counter, and during the first 17 days of the new year only five licenses were issued.

"Either the girls are too bashful or are late in starting their leap-year campaign," said Donnan, chief deputy auditor, declared.

Stone Proves Grenade

New York—Part of a hand grenade found by Victor Baluch, ten years old, exploded and shattered the tip of the fingers of his left hand. The lad thought he was picking up a rock when he reached for the grenade. The next moment it went off, and boys with whom he was playing fled.

House to Warm Pup

Springfield, Mass.—Going to the cellar of his home, where his pet dog was housed in a box, George Stumpey, four and a half years old, found that the pup might be cold, so, with his sister Rosa, two and a half, he set fire to some papers near the dog's box.

When the flames crept up into the upper stories, George and Rosa, who were with the pup to a neighbor's, while policemen helped other members of the two families occupying the dwelling to escape. The damage was several thousand dollars.

Penn State to Bar Student Motor Cars

Harrisburg—Students at Pennsylvania State College hereafter will be prohibited from having their motor cars to college, and their parents are to be notified to this effect, according to a resolution adopted by the board of trustees. The resolution said "It is the opinion of the board of trustees that students of the college cannot keep automobiles for use while at college without interference with their studies and without considerable risk to their personal safety and health. The council of administration is therefore directed to take such action as may be necessary to prevent this practice and to bring general notice of such action to the attention of the parents of students."

Opens 500 to 1,000 Letters Daily for the President

Washington—The "human letter opener" might be the designation given Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt, for he has sat at the same desk in the White House executive offices for 16 years and opened all letters addressed to the President. So if you write a letter to the President, Smith says it first. From 500 to 1,000 letters in one day's mail, here's Smith right on the job—always opening mail, but he does it.

Mascot to U. S. Cutter
Mojae Buried at Sea

Honolulu—The United States Coast Guard cutter Mojae, assigned to port recently ahead of her schedule, immediately she docked, members of her crew got an automobile and rushed the ship's mascot, a dog named "Soup," to a veterinarian in an endeavor to save his life. But "Soup" had no chance to live, the doctor declared, and he was immediately cremated.

The next morning, with her flag at half-mast, the Mojae steamed slowly out of the harbor to sea, where, after a brief service, the remains were committed to the deep.

"Soup" joined the Mojae at San Francisco and served aboard during the Albatross tour of duty. He became ill shortly before the cutter was here, and nothing that could be done seemed to help him. The commander was appealed to and he gave permission to increase the speed of the ship to capacity in order as soon as possible to secure the services of a veterinarian.

Junkman Gives Wife
Very Elaborate Burial

New York—Funeral services for Josephine Cusumano, wife of Dom Inick, a ragpicker of 230 Thompson street, were held recently at the Church of St. Anthony, while hundreds of the woman's Italian friends watched the tapers of the requiem mass glow on her coffin and burne candle. The body was taken in a hearse to Calvary cemetery.

Josephine was Dominick's business partner for two years. A paper shortage tripled the value of the great piles he had gathered at Dominick's soap in Prince street. Then Josephine died unexpectedly. So the ragpicker is spending his newly won money in providing the costliest funeral and burial he can. Forty caskets wound slowly from the tomb that contained Dom Inick's one-room home. The coffin was carried by ten pathbearers while the musical hymns of John Petrucci played Italian hymns. Dominick plans to build a $15,000 mausoleum.

POULTRY FACTS

Right Feeding Vital to Get Eggs During Winter

The poultryman who wants to keep his pullets laying during the winter must give careful attention to feeding. The chicken must eat the best of the winter feed at the time she is laying. The birds, they say, must be fed, as this gives them strength and endurance. Three-fourths of the food they eat should be hard grain. Mash is not so important during the winter part of their development as when they are ready to lay. If milk is fed, little mash is necessary. This should have plenty of green food at all times.

When the first eggs are found on the range at least one third or one-half of the best developed birds should be placed in their winter quarters, whether it be September 1 or November 1.

Good judgment must then be exercised in feeding the pullets after they are mature and are in their winter houses. Usually eight quarts of hard grain due to feed to 100 birds.

One-third or one-fourth of this amount should be fed in the morning and the balance at night. When about half the birds are laying well they may require as much as twelve quarts a day.

Sometimes, however, eight quarts is too much and it is necessary to cut down on this amount until the birds can easily clean it up. Mash should always be kept before them in hoppers or feeders.

Pullets at Cornell have been found to lay best when fed three parts of hard grain to two parts of mash by weight. It is necessary to feed green food in some form such as sprouted oats or beta or cabbage. A small amount of milk is a valuable addition to the ration and helps to keep the birds in good condition. The birds should never be starved, but on the other hand they should be hungry at feeding time.

The secret of long and continuous laying with a pure-bred flock is to keep the birds always reasonably fat. The college concludes.

Chicken Mineral Mixture

A mixture of salt lime and bone meal added to urban meal or other vegetable protein nearly doubled its value in the feed for laying hens or growing chicks in recent tests at the Ohio experiment station.

These minerals though making up only 4 per cent of the mash and costing less than 4 cents a year per hen, proved as necessary as any other part of the feed.

Grains and seeds are deficient in protein and minerals. These are supplied by the addition of meat scrap, skim milk or other animal supplement to the feed of grain and mash. Soybean meal, peanut meal, cottonseed meal, and the like supply protein but are deficient in minerals.

When the mineral mixture was added to soybean meal at the rate of 4 pounds per hundred the value was doubled making it almost equal to meat scrap or milk for egg production and growth.

The station mix also mixture is made up of 60 parts of bone meal, 20 of limestone and 20 of common salt.

Feeding Good Balanced Ration to Secure Eggs

Feed the chickens a good balanced ration. Feed scratch grain in the afternoon mash in hoppers (available all the time). Green succulents are necessary for egg production and hatchable eggs during breeding season. Have fresh water always available; water should be changed often. Provide milk in some form either as a beverage in addition to regular mash or to take place of part of protein element; it contains vitamins which are essential for laying hens.

The above is brief is the advice of poultry authorities on care of laying stock. Some formulae for making best egg production are suggested below:

1 part wheat bran, 1 part ground oats
1 part wheat mid- 1 part cornmeal
dlings 1 part meat scrap
2 parts cornmeal 1 part molasses
1 part bran 1 part meat scrap
2 parts oatmeal 1 part meat scrap

The host ushered the two men across the hall, now comparatively deserted, for every one had settled down to a long passage through a private door which he unlocked with a Yale key, and into the gymnasium. There were less than fifty spectators seated around the ring, and Francis, glancing at them listlessly, fancied that he recognized nearly every one of them. There was Baker, a judge, a couple of actors, Lord Meadowcroft, the most renowned of sporting peers, and a dozen who followed in his footsteps; a little man who had once been a tenor champion in the hamlet class, and who was now considered the finest judge of boxing in the world; a theatrical manager, the present amateur boxing champion, and a sprinkling of others. Sir Timothy and his companions took their chairs amidst a buzz of welcome. Almost immediately, the man who was in charge of the proceedings and whose name was Harrison, rose from his place.

"Gentlemen," he said, "this is a sporting contest, but one under usual rules and usual conditions. An amateur, who tips the scales at twelve stone seven, who has never engaged in a boxing contest in his life, is matched against a young man from a different sphere of life, who intends to adopt the ring as his profession, but who has never as yet fought in public. Names, gentlemen, as you know, are seldom mentioned here. I will only say that the first in the ring is the nominee of our friend and host, Sir Timothy Brass; second comes the nominee of Lord Meadowcroft."

Wilmore, notwithstanding his pre-knowledge, gave a little gasp. "The young man who stood next to me a few yards of him, carefully swinging his gloves in his hand, was without a doubt his missing brother. He looked well and in the pink of condition; not only well but entirely confident and at his ease. His opponent, on the other hand, a sturdy man, a few inches shorter, was nervous and awkward, though none the less determined-looking. Sir Timothy rose and whispered in Harrison's ear. The latter nodded. In a few moments the preliminaries were concluded, the fight began."

Francis, glad of a moment or two's solitude in which to rearrange his somewhat distorted sensations, found in empty space in the stern of the launch and stood leaning over the rail. His pulses were still tingling with the indubitable excitement of the last half-hour. It was all there, even now, before his eyes like a cinematograph picture—the duel between those two men, a duel of knowledge, of strength, of science, of courage. From beginning to end, there had been no moment when Francis had felt that he was looking on at what was in any way a degrading or ignominious spectacle. Each man had fought in his way to win. Young Wilmore, graceful as a panther, with a keen, glowing desire of youth for supremacy written in his face and in the dogged lines of his mouth; the budding champion from the East and less graceful, perhaps, but with even more strength and at least as much determination, had certainly done his best to justify his selection. There were no notes to be heard. There had been no undue fainting, no holding, few of the tricks of the professional ring. It was a fight to a finish, or until Harrison gave the word. And the better man had won. But even that knock-out blow which Reggie Wilmore had delivered after a wonderful feat, had had little that was cruel in it. There was something beautiful about the latter's strength and grace with which it had been delivered—the breathless judgment, the waiting, the end.

He heard Sir Timothy's voice a few yards away, and turned to look at him. He had just come from below, and had passed opposite a man who had been standing a little apart from the others, one of the few who were waiting. He was holding a light, he felt the cold. In the background were the two servants who had guarded the gateway.

"Mr. Mansel Lott," Sir Timothy said—"or shall I say Mr. Shopton?" my invited guests are welcome. I have only one method of dealing with unwelcome ones."

The two men suddenly stepped forward. Shopton made no protest, attempted no struggle. They lifted him off his feet as though he were a baby, and a moment later there was a splash in the water. They threw a life-belt after him.

"Always humane, you see," Sir Timothy remarked, as he leaned over the side. "Ah! I see that even in his overcoat our friend is swimmer enough to reach the bank. You find our methods harsh, Lott?" he asked, turning a challenging gaze towards the latter. "Francis," who had been watching Shopton come to the surface, shrugged his shoulders. He delayed answering for a moment while he watched the detective, dislodging the life-belt, swim to the opposite shore.

"I suppose that under the circumstances," Francis said, "he was prepared to take his risk."

"You should know best about that," Sir Timothy rejoined. "I wonder whether you would mind looking after Lady Cynthia? I shall be busy for a few moments."

Francis stepped across the deck towards where Lady Cynthia had been sitting by her host's side. They had passed into the mouth of a tree-hung strip of the river. The engine was suddenly shut off. A gang was

There was a murmur, almost a sob of relief, as the little sprinkling of men and women rose hastily to their feet and made their way towards the companion-way. Downstairs, in the saloon, with its white setwood panels and rows of swing chairs, heavy curtains were drawn across the port-holes, all outside light was shut out from the place. At the further end, raised slightly from the floor, was a sandal circle. Sir Timothy made his way to one of the pillars by its side and turned around to face the little company of guests. His voice, though it seemed scarcely raised above a whisper, was extraordinarily clear and distinct. Even Francis, who, with Lady Cynthia, had found seats only just inside the door, could hear every word he said.

"My friends," he began, "you have often before been my guests at such small fights as we have been able to arrange in an unorthodox manner as possible between professional boxers. There has been some lovely about that, but on the last occasion I think it was generally observed that they had become a little too professional, a little ultra-scientific. There was something which they lacked. With that something I am hoping to provide you tonight. Thank you, Sir Edgar," he murmured, leaning down towards his neighbor.

He held his cigarette in the flame of a match which the other had kindled. Francis, who was watching intently, was puzzled at the expression with which for a moment, as he straightened himself, Sir Timothy glanced down the room, seeking for Lady Cynthia's eyes. In a sense it was as though he were seeking for something he needed—approbation, sympathy, understanding.

"Our hobby, as you know, has been reality," he continued. "That is what we have not always been able to achieve. Tonight I offer you reality. There are two men here, one an East end boxer, the other an Italian, usually associated with an ill-reputed rehearsal of musical production. These two men have not outlived sensation as I fancy so many of us have. They hate one another to the death. I forget their surname, but Giuseppe has stolen Jim's girl, is living with her at the present moment, and proposes to keep her. Jim has sworn to have the lives of both of them. Jim's corner, in its way, is interesting to us, but he is a good fellow, a young man in prison for manslaughter, and a year for a brutal assault upon a constable. Giuseppe was tried in his native country for a particularly heinous murder, and escaped, owing, I believe, to some legal technicality. That, however, has nothing to do with the matter. These men have sworn to fight to the death, and the girl, I understand, is willing to return to Jim if she should be successful or to remain with Giuseppe if he should show himself able to retain her. The fight between these men, my friends, has been transferred from Seven Dials for your entertainment. It will take place before you here and now."

There was a little shiver amongst the audience. Francis, almost to his horror, was unable to resist the feeling of acute excitement which came through his veins. A few yards away, Lady Isabel seemed to have become transformed. She was leaning forward in her chair, her eyes glowing, her lips parted, rejuvenated, dehumanized. Francis' immediate companion, however, surprised him. Her eyes were fixed intently upon Sir Timothy's. She seemed to have been weighing every word he had spoken. There was some of that husky pleasure in her face which shone from the other woman's face and was reflected in the faces of many of the others. She seemed to be bracing herself for a shock. Sir Timothy looked toward the door which opened upon the sandal space.

"You can bring your men along," he directed.

One of the attendants promptly made his appearance. He was holding a light, he felt the cold. In the background were the two servants who had guarded the gateway.

"Mr. Mansel Lott," Sir Timothy said—"or shall I say Mr. Shopton?" my invited guests are welcome. I have only one method of dealing with unwelcome ones."

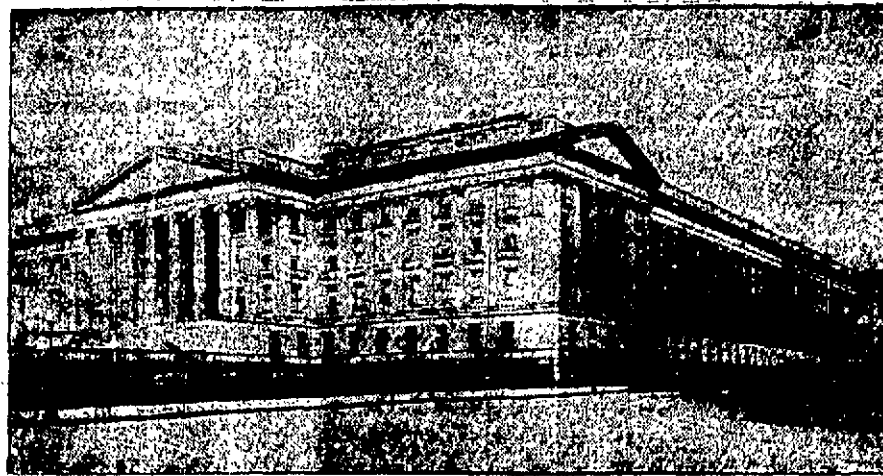

The two men suddenly stepped forward. Shopton made no protest, attempted no struggle. They lifted him off his feet as though he were a baby, and a moment later there was a splash in the water. They threw a life-belt after him.

"Always humane, you see," Sir Timothy remarked, as he leaned over the side. "Ah! I see that even in his overcoat our friend is swimmer enough to reach the bank. You find our methods harsh, Lott?" he asked, turning a challenging gaze towards the latter. "Francis," who had been watching Shopton come to the surface, shrugged his shoulders. He delayed answering for a moment while he watched the detective, dislodging the life-belt, swim to the opposite shore.

"I suppose that under the circumstances," Francis said, "he was prepared to take his risk."

"You should know best about that," Sir Timothy rejoined. "I wonder whether you would mind looking after Lady Cynthia? I shall be busy for a few moments."

Francis stepped across the deck towards where Lady Cynthia had been sitting by her host's side. They had passed into the mouth of a tree-hung strip of the river. The engine was suddenly shut off. A gang was

WHERE MR. MELLON PRESENTS

All eyes have been on the Treasury department during the past two months. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, through his forward advocacy of tax reduction, during the present session of Congress, has brought the public to a realization of the fact that the government has been successful in its drive for economy during the past three years. Not only has it lived within the estimates of expenditures, but it has also been able to show a surplus of receipts over expenditures. In addition to directing the general financial policy of the administration, Mr. Mellon has charge of the Internal Revenue, Customs, Prohibition Enforcement, Coast Guard, Public Health and many other activities of the Government.

Sir Timothy resumed his seat and leaned back in laudatory fashion. The two attendants solemnly released their captives. There was a moment's intense silence. The two men seemed fencing for position. There was something stealthy and hostile about their movements as they crept around one another. Francis realized that it was almost as the little sobbing breath from those of the audience who had retained any emotion, showed him that they, too, knew what was going to happen. Both men had drawn knives from their holts. It was murder which had been let loose.

Francis found himself almost immediately upon his feet. His whole being seemed crying out for interference. Lady Cynthia's death-white face and pleading eyes seemed like the echo of his own passionate aversion to what was taking place. Then he met Sir Timothy's gaze across the room and he remembered his promise. Under no conditions was he to protect or interfere. He set his teeth and resumed his seat. The fight went on. There were little sobs and tremors of excitement, strange banks of silence. Both men seemed out of condition. The sound of their hoarse breathing was easily heard against the curtain of spellbound silence. For a time their knives stabbed the empty air, but from the first the end seemed certain.

The Englishman attacked wildly. His adversary snatched his knife, content with avoiding the murderous blow struck at him, striving all the time to stand unharmed the other's guard. And then, almost without warning, it was all over. Jim was on his back in a trice. There was a sound of a sword being thrust into a scabbard. The other man was kneeling by his side, his hand, gliding off his eyes, guiding all the time the rising and falling of his knife. There was one more short-sighted silence, and then the sound of the victor's breathing as he rose slowly from his ghastly task. Sir Timothy rose to his feet and waved his hand. The curtain went down.

"On deck, if you please, ladies and gentlemen," he said, calmly.

No one stirred. A woman began to sob. A fat, unhealthy-looking man in front of Francis reeled over in a dazed faint. Two other of the guests near had risen from their seats and were shouting shrilly at the lunatics. Even Francis was conscious of the body due to his lacerated nerves. Only the clinging of Lady Cynthia to his arm kept him from rushing from the spot.

"You are faint," he whispered.

"Upstairs—ah!" she faltered.

They rose to their feet. The sound of Sir Timothy's voice reached them as they ascended the stairs.

"On deck, everyone, if you please," he said. "Refreshments are being served there. There are inquisitive people who watch my launch, and it is inadvisable to remain here long."

People hurried out; then as though their own desire was to escape from the scene of the tragedy, Lady Cynthia, still clinging to Francis' arm, led him to the furthest corner of the launch.

There were real tears in her eyes, her breath was coming in little sobs.

"Oh, it was horrible!" she cried. "Horrible! Mr. Lott—I can't help it—I never want to speak to Sir Timothy again!"

One final horror arrested for a moment the sound of voices. There was a fall splash in the river. Something had been thrown overboard. The orchestra began to play dance music. Conversation suddenly burst out. Everyone was hysterical. A pair of the

Learned Astronomy by Making Own Telescopes

How a group of mechanics, living in Springfield, Vt., learned the science of astronomy by making their own telescopes at home, is related in Popular Astronomy by Russell W. Porter.

Several of these mechanics had their own small workshops, located usually in the cellars of their homes. "Interest did not stop with the completion of the telescopes," says Mr. Porter. "The telescope makers found an old station on Hawks mountain, just outside of the township, occupied years ago in the government triangulation of New England. They camped on the mountain, built a substantial tower and signal over the station. On another occasion they spent the night on the summit of Mount Ephraim, the highest point in the township. This gathering, I believe, is unique in the annals of astronomy. Throughout that night, from the appearance of the first star until dawn, these men were exploring the heavens. It proved to be a good night for observing a swift wind. The light from a rising captive revealed a circle of animated faces listening intently to some celestial fact just brought out at the expense of one of the instruments."

How Natives of Papua Prepare Heads of Foes

In a recent issue of Man, Mr. E. A. Riley gives an account of the method of preparing the heads of enemies captured at the village of Berron in Papua. After the flesh and brains are removed a piece of rattan cane is fixed to the bottom of the mummified skull to take the place of the lower jaw and to act as a support for the packing of the neck. It was difficult to ascertain why the lower jaw is not replaced. The explanation seems to be that they prefer to have this up to the house and keep it as a mark or token of the owner's prowess in war after the mummified head has decayed; but the lower jaw is sometimes replaced, being tied to the zygomas, as with the rattan cane. Finally, the head is dried, being fixed on a wooden framework over a fire lighted for that purpose, and the hair is pulled out as decomposition of the skin advances.

Slight Jar Will Ruin Your Aneroid Barometer

That seemingly irresistible longing to tap the barometer is responsible for the ruining of something like ninety-five out of every one hundred of the instruments. Many people give their barometer a friendly tap to send it on a bit in the direction of "high"—every time they glance at it. This tapping, however, is the instrument losing much of its accuracy and a great deal of its sensibility.

The aneroid barometer, which is the type most generally in use, is by its construction, a delicate instrument. In essence it consists of a cylindrical metal box, from which all air has been extracted, fitted with a thin layer of corrugated metal. It is the pressure on this lid, giving it a certain degree of convexity, which is reflected, by a delicate system of levers, by the pointer on the dial read by the observer.

A barometer of the aneroid type tells the truth, by its reflection of changes in the air pressure, to the best of its ability—London Mail.

World's Garbanzo Center

The state of Sonora is the world's largest producer of "garbanzos" or chickpeas, according to P. L. Rolli's "Handbook of the Mexican West Coast and Southern California," just issued by the Department of Commerce.

The bulk of the garbanzo is exported to Spain or to the West Indian Islands. Garbanzos are grown something like rice, in fields, with raised borders, which are flooded with water, in August and September, when the rains are heavy, but plowing is not done in the water, as with rice. The plowman waits until the water has soaked into the ground, then he plows, and the seedman plants the garbanzo. Little irrigation is done during the growing season, the moisture retained by the soil being as a rule sufficient to mature the plant. In May the plants are pulled up by hand and laid out on the fields to dry, after which they are carried to a threshing floor, where the pebble contents of the pods are knocked out on the ground, and afterward packed into 220-pound sacks.

Providential Escape

The old lady had had a severe illness, and she was relating its vicissitudes to a friend or two in the grocer's shop when the minister came in.

"It's only the Lord's mercy," she piously declared, "that I'm not in heaven tonight!"

High School Triumphs Over Greensburg; Back To Usual Snappy Form

High School "Jumps" on to Victors for an Easy Victory, 10-21.

"NOW FOR TARENTUM"

Connellsville High School's basketball team delighted a big crowd of supporters at the local gym Saturday night by something of a return to its old form and the defeat of Greensburg High School by an almost two to one score 10-21.

Point goals were scarce articles only 4 out of 19 attempts being counted by the Orange and Black crew.

Greensburg made eight field goals and practically all of this number were distance shots the impracticable defense of Connellsville checking every endeavor of the visitors to get under the banking board. No method attempted by the Brown and White quintet could stop the Coker rampage, however, and the game went merrily on.

Connellsville has no more games until next Saturday night when the team plays Tarentum High School at the new gymnasium in the first of the elimination series of the W. P. A. League. Meanwhile the boys will be kept in good trim by a limited workout.

The line-up

Connellsville—H. H. 4, LaRue 5, O'Donnell 4, Walsh 4, Skondovich 3, Ross 2, Rial 2, Roland 2. Substitutions—Van Gorder for O'Donnell, Willis for LaRue, DeLozier for Walsh, Davis for Ross, Roland for Skondovich, Brown for Branning for Brown.

Point goals—H. H. 5, LaRue 5, O'Donnell 4, Walsh 4, Skondovich 3, Ross 2, Rial 2, Roland 2.

Field goals—H. H. 2 out of 3, Van Gorder 1 out of 1, LaRue 1 out of 2, O'Donnell 2 out of 3, Ross 1 out of 2, Walsh 1 out of 1, Skondovich 1 out of 2.
